The Soldiers and Sailors Monument near the summit honors New Haven men who gave their lives in the Revolution-ary War, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, and the Civil War. Erected in 1887, this 112-foot high tower almost anywhere in New Haven.

East Rock Park offers over 10 miles of hiking trails. The Giant Steps Trail provides a spectacular 285-foot climb to the Summit. It is designated with red triangle trail markers and starts at the English Drive gate along the north side of Rice Field. East Rock Park includes many special features including the Trowbridge Environmental Center and the Pardee Rose Garden. The Trowbridge Environmental Center is a nature center which is open to the general public and features displays and information about the local flora and fauna. The Pardee Rose Garden and Greenhouse is a favorite location for wedding photos that features extensive rose gardens and other flowering plants from early spring until mid fall. The garden has a unique raised tiered structure that resembles the top of a wedding cake. The park is open all year round.

East Rock was formed 200 million years ago as the continents were in the process of moving away from each other. Molten rock from deep in the earth surged through stress cracks formed in the sandstone bedrock of the New Haven area. The molten rock cooled to form dolerite, also known as basalt or traprock. Dolerite is much more resistant to erosion than the surrounding sandstone. As glacial action and the forces of weather eroded away the softer sandstone, East Rock (and other traprock ridges such as West Rock) became more prominent. The summit of East Rock Park now rises more than 350 feet above the floor of the Mill River Valley at its base. The summit of East Rock is accessible by foot, bicycle, or car and provides views of New Haven, the Harbor and Long Island Sound.
